IMPROVEMENTS IN BUSINESS SECTION

W. L. Federmann to Remodel Leininger Building, West Second. For Modern Drug Store.

TO INSTALL HANDSOME FRONT

E. C. Franz, Local Ford Dealer, Purchases Lot at Second and Ewing for Up-to-Date Garage.

The next few months will bring many radical changes in the appearance of the business district. A number of extensive improvements are contemplated but are not ready for authentic announcement until the final plans are completed. Two of the important changes, however, became public today.

W. L. Federmann, who has very successfully conducted a drug store in the Andrews block, corner Second and Chestnut streets, has purchased the Leininger building, West Second street, which was formerly occupied by the Central Pharmaceutical Company, and extensive improvements there were begun today. This building is one of the oldest in the business district, but will be entirely changed when Mr. Federmann's plans are completed. He will occupy it and is remodeling the structure to suit the especial needs of a drug store.

Practically all the interior will be torn out and the floor which is several feet above the sidewalk will be lowered to the sidewalk grade. After the interior is completed the present front will be torn away and a new front that will extend on a line with that of the Eagle restaurant building will be installed. It will be one of the most handsome and attractive fronts in any business block in the city.

The building will give Mr. Federmann additional room for his growing business. He will occupy both the ground and second floors, and the store will be arranged in departments in keeping with the most modern drug stores in the larger cities. A ladies' rest room will be installed for the convenience of tourists. New fixtures including a new soda fountain will be installed. An attractive apartment will be arranged for the Victrola department which he recently added to his store. Mr. Federmann has made elaborate plans

PRECAUTION TAKEN TO PREVENT RENEW AT RIOT

Omaha Authorities on the Alert—Extra Guards Around Negro District.

By United Press
Omaha, Neb., Oct. 2—Authorities today took redoubled precautions to prevent further race riots, following an attack made on Mrs. W. G. Wisner, a white woman, by a negro.

Guards in the negro district were doubled; firemen were ordered to remain at their stations constantly and no one was allowed to enter the negro district without first showing they had business there.

Mrs. Wisner was attacked in her home on the edge of the Black Belt, where several hundred United States troops are on guard. The negro tied his victim, dragged her to a woodshed and threatened to kill her if she made an outcry.

Her two children later found her and summoned a military guard. Papers here refrained from publishing details of the attack.

COMPLETE INQUIRY IS URGED BY GARY

Head of Steel Corporation Says Hurried Investigation Might Prolong The Strike.

By United Press
Washington, Oct. 2—Delay in the settlement of the steel strike might result if the senate labor committee carries out its intention of visiting the steel district, Judge Gary declared when he resumed his testimony before the committee today. Strikers misunderstand the purpose of the strike, Gary said. He urged an extended investigation by members of the committee instead of a hurried two days' trip.

Compromise or arbitration of the steel strike was flatly spurned by Judge Gary before the senate committee today.

"I can't talk about compromise or arbitration at the present time, as much as I regret it," Gary said.

Immediate before his refusal of arbitration Gary had said in reply to a question by Senator Walsh, Massachusetts, that he would refuse to meet union leaders in an attempt to settle the steel strike which the senate committee is investigating.

Gary bases his refusal to meet attempts of settlement of the strike on his declaration that the unions represented a minority of the men.

"The union labor leaders or some of them acting upon the existing circumstances, utilizing a comparative small minority of foreigners, have brought about this strike which is an attempt on a part of the minority to secure control of the employers as well as the employees," Gary said deliberately.

SON FINDS MOTHER AT COUNTY ASYLUM

Charles King, of Chicago, Locates Mrs. Eliza Cobble After Separation of 31 Years.

ANOTHER SON IN CALIFORNIA

Family Became Separated While They Were Living Near Cortland—Sons in Regular Army.

A happy reunion occurred at the county poor asylum at Brownstown Monday evening when Charles King, of Chicago, located his aged mother, Mrs. Eliza Cobble, from whom he had been separated for over thirty-one years. Concerning the happy reunion the Brownstown Banner carried the following article:

After a separation of thirty-one years, Mrs. Eliza Cobble, aged about seventy-five years, who has been an inmate of the county poor asylum for the past year, will leave that institution in a few days to spend the remainder of her years with her son, Charles King, of Chicago, and another son, Alfred King, whose home is in California.

Mrs. Cobble was twice married, and her sons, Charles and Alfred, by her first husband, became separated about thirty-one years ago, when the two boys joined the regular army soon after which she lost all trace of them and had long since mourned them as dead.

Imagine her joy and surprise.

The hearing will be held at the council chamber and Commissioner Corr will preside.

During the preliminary statements at the first hearing on the case, recently held in this city, Charles Edwards, attorney for the telephone company, announced that the petitioner would not accept the commission's estimated value of $88,000 on the Seymour property and would ask for a detailed survey. John M. Lewis, attorney for the city, stated that the respondent was not satisfied with the estimated valuation placed on

ROYALTY'S GREAT DEMOCRAT ARRIVES IN UNITED STATES

King Albert and Royal Party Given Great Welcome in New York.

By United Press
New York, Oct. 2—America today welcomed royalty's greatest democrat Albert of the Belgians. For the first time in history a king trod American shore when Albert stepped ashore from the steamer George Washington at Hoboken at noon.

American officials had sought to give the ceremony a certain decorum but the tens of thousands who witnessed the coming of the king, his consort and his heir despite a heavy rainfall, would have none of it. They were determined to show their admiration for the soldier-monarch in their own way and they did. The cheer of welcome and the whistles and sirens in the bay, carried no spirit of "hail to the king" but instead a typical American man to man "howdy Albert."

As the gang plank was lowered everyone stood at attention and King Albert walked down to the pier followed by the queen and prince and other members of the royal party. Vice-President Marshall welcomed the king on behalf of the people and the king replied. After the welcoming ceremony was over Albert shook hands with the receiving committee and went to the Waldorf Astoria. Enroute to the hotel he was cheered by thousands along the street.

ELEVEN KILLED IN ARKANSAS RIOTS

Race Fights Resume at Elaine Today Preceding Arrival of Five Hundred Soldiers.

MACHINE GUNS ARE READY

Disturbance Starts When White Policeman is Shot and Killed From Ambush.

By United Press

Helena, Ark., October 2—Four white men and seven negroes are known to have been killed in race riots at Elaine near here. The sheriff stated that several other negroes are believed to have been killed. One white man and a number of negroes were killed when the riot was renewed early today. The others lost their lives in Wednesday's fighting. Soldiers from Camp Pike at noon had surrounded a large number of negroes hiding in the cane break, according to reports here. Couriers were sent into the cane break to demand the surrender of the negroes under threat of an attack from the troops.

Despite the presence of troops, feeling is high due to reports that the negro rioters were fully armed and that the original trouble started as result of an alleged seditious meeting held in a negro church.

"There is not the slightest doubt but that the negroes were well drilled and fully prepared," Mayor Knight of Helena said. "They employed military tactics throughout the fighting."

Reoccurrence of the rioting preceded the arrival in Elaine of five hundred soldiers sent there from Camp Pike armed with machine guns. Order was restored as soon as the troops took charge. In addition to the soldiers, surrounding towns sent armed citizens to Elaine. Three hundred reserves were held at the Helena court house. Others patrolled the streets here fearing the race hatred might be communicated to this city.

Race trouble started when W. D. Adkins, special railroad agent, was shot and killed from ambush while accompanying deputy Sheriff Pratt to arrest a negro on a minor charge.

Reports were then circulated of an alleged negro plot to rise against the white residents in the southern part of Phillips county.

Special deputies were sworn in by Sheriff Kitchens and sent to Elaine. Two of these, Clinton Lee and J. A. Tappen were killed.

Lee is reported to have been accidentally killed and Tappen was shot and killed during fighting at Elaine.

Reports stated authorities in Elaine arrested 100 negroes and one white man, the latter being accused of disturbing questionable literature. The jail has been placed under heavy guard to prevent an attempt to liberate the prisoners.

Thomas Brooks Fletcher.

"Over a million people have paid to hear him talk," is said of Thomas Brooks Fletcher who lectures on the Seymour Lyceum Course October 10th.

Mr. Fletcher has lectured to audiences all over the country and everywhere, it is said, he has made a great impression.

The following typical newspaper comment on Mr. Fletcher is taken from the Fort Wayne, Indiana, Journal Gazette:

"Mr. Fletcher proved a forceful, energetic speaker who feared not to express himself and to condemn where he thought condemnation was warranted. Every paragraph had an epigram with a punch."

THE LOCAL CENSUS.

On January 1 the task of counting the people in Seymour for the federal census of 1920 will begin.

In the past the majority of local people have always looked upon this undertaking as the other fellow's job, in which they had no interest and out of which could come no personal benefit. As a result the taking of a census was a formality. Whether or not all the members of the family were listed made little difference. Because of this neglect and indifference Seymour was cheated out of its rightful population ten years ago.

The taking of a census in any city is an important task. It furnishes the population rating of that city for ten years to come. The uses of the census are numerous and some of them are highly valuable to the city and its inhabitants. In the coming census Seymour does not desire to be accredited with a larger population than it really has, but the people do want a correct count. This can only be made by every individual becoming familiar with the census rules and requirements, and then co-operating with the enumerators.

It has been suggested that the chamber of commerce appoint a committee to assist the enumerators and that this general committee appoint one or more people in each block in the city to go over the enumerators' reports and ascertain if the count is accurately made. Frequently lodgers or boarders who live here and vote here are not listed in the federal census because no one thinks to include their names when such individuals are not at home. Hundreds of such people live here and the omission of half their names will make a big difference in the final tabulation.

The public should become familiar with the requirements of the census laws, ascertain what information is needed and then be prepared to give it promptly and accurately to the enumerators. Co-operation between the chamber of commerce and the enumerators will result in the most accurate census report that has ever been made here.

GARY'S TESTIMONY.

The testimony given yesterday by Judge Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the United States Steel Corporation, before the senate committee investigating the steel strike, refutes statements which had been made by the organizers of the walkout. Facts given the committee by Judge Gary concerning the payroll of the corporation show that the strike leaders were not fully informed regarding this element of the industry's business. Secretary Foster in testifying before the senate committee admitted that he was not familiar with the scale of wages but complained of the working conditions.

The organizers of the strike have contended that the corporation's representatives have murdered and mistreated employees. Certain names were mentioned. But Judge Gary presented affidavits signed by relatives of those who have been beaten in mob riots that such persons were not mistreated by representatives of the corporation, but by members of the I. W. W. With information pro and con on the subject the members of the investigating committee can probe deeper into the charges and ascertain the facts for themselves.

Judge Gary's testimony is interesting not because he denies the charges made against the steel corporation, but because he presents his views as to the labor situation today. The steel corporation has always conducted its business on the "open" shop principle. "If labor unions control industries in the United States it means decay and the dropping of production," according to Judge Gary's views.

The fact remains that the public is insistent upon increased production. Labor unions ought to recognize that they have a service and a duty to perform. The level headed leaders of some unions appreciate the important positions they hold and are urging their men to stay with their jobs until the present crisis has passed. It is the radicals who are working through the foreign element that are causing the principal trouble today. The government also has a duty to perform for the public. The purposes and designs of these radical agitators should be disclosed. Americans who love America and appreciate the advantages we enjoy are not willing to permit European trouble makers to come to this country to attempt to dislocate, injure and destroy our industrial and commercial institutions for their own selfish ends.

Despite the fact that the penny is not worth much, two million are being made daily by the government.

The fall taxes are now due and payable and persons who can possibly arrange to do so should take advantage of the opportunity to pay now rather than wait until the last few days and have to wait for several hours in order to be waited on at the treasurer's office which is always crowded at that time.

The whole question of a super-tire is a matter of principles. For there is nothing exclusive in the industry. No patents, no secret formulas prevent a conscientious maker from building the best.

But cost and competition modify ideals. The Brunswick idea is to pay perfection's price and get it.

That has been the Brunswick policy since 1845. And it accounts for the growing preference for Brunswick Tires. Motorists expect the utmost from a tire bearing the name of Brunswick—and get it.

The Man of The Hour.....

You know him,—at least you have heard about him and you will hear more of him.

He's the sort of fellow who as a young man laid out his scheme of life and followed it through.

During the war he put his money into Liberty bonds instead of squandering it with so-called "good fellows."

He saved his money and is a national asset not a public liability. He is a saver of money, of vitality, of self respect.

He has faith in himself and in his country. He banks on the future. So he knows he must bank in the present.

He saves what he can each week. He saves regularly and watches it grow. He cannot help succeeding because he has the habit of saving systematically.

His savings placed in our savings department bring him 3 per cent. interest. His regular checking account has careful attention at our bank. His valuable papers are absolutely safe in our fireproof, burglar-proof vault.

Let us talk over with you our facilities for handling your banking business as well as his.

Monday night when a stranger inquired for her at the institution after she had gone to bed, who proved to be her oldest son, Charles King, of Chicago, whose long search for her was finally rewarded. Thirty-one years had changed him from a boy of twenty to a fine looking man of mature years, and she did not recognize him, but it is needless to say that there was an affectionate greeting when he made himself known, and tears of joy rolled down the old lady's cheeks when she embraced the son she had long given up as dead, and was also informed that her other son, Alfred, was living in California in excellent circumstances—said to be worth $100,000.

The separation of Mrs. Cobble and her sons occurred thirty-one years ago while they were living near Cortland, when Charles, who was then about twenty, went to Ohio and joined the regular army. Soon afterward Alfred, the younger brother, also joined the regulars, but not with his brother, and they also became separated. She heard from Charles about twice, and then lost all trace of him.

Being alone in the world, she began working out and for a number of years made her home at Jesse Allman's near Surprise, until about a year ago, when she was brought to the county poor asylum suffering from heart trouble.

Some years ago Charles and his brother were reunited in California, under peculiar circumstances. Both were in the army but did not know of each other's whereabouts. One day there was some trouble in the army kitchen, and one of the brothers heard the name of "the King boy" mentioned in the argument. He went in and found that it was his brother.

They then began to try to locate their mother, through correspondence but were unable to do so, possibly from the fact that their names were King, and their mother's name by her second husband was Cobble.

Recently Charles moved from California to Chicago, and he decided to make another effort to locate his mother. He had heard her speak of having a brother at Louisville and went there last week but was unable to find him. He then went from there to North Vernon, and thence to Seymour, and while at the latter place Monday making inquiry he chanced to run across a member of the Allman family, who informed him that his mother had for years made her home at Jesse Allman's near Surprise.

Procuring an automobile, he drove to the Allman home and learned that his mother was at the county poor asylum, and he drove here reaching here after dark.

He remained here until Tuesday and arranged to take his mother back to Chicago.

A singular coincidence with the reunion of mother and son is the fact that last week she had a presentiment that some of her relatives would soon come after her. After failing to locate her sons through the government war department at Washington several years ago she gave them up as lost and gave up all hope of ever seeing them. But last week her hopes were revived that she still had relatives living somewhere and she addressed another letter to her brother at Louisville, but instead of hearing from him her premonition was fulfilled by her own son coming after her.

Women Backing the Soldier Boys.

When the history of the war has been written the work done by the women at home will impress itself upon this nation as few even now realize. Literally, millions of women left their homes and took up war activities into which women had never before been called, and many more at home devoted long hours at work in knitting and preparing surgical dressings for the boys "over there." Some may have worked at the expense of health and are now suffering from headaches, backache, dragging-down pains or some derangement. It should be remembered that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for more than forty years has been restoring such women to health and strength, and is now recognized as a standard remedy.

A HOT SPOT Chalmers Has Six Wonderful Cylinders

YOU would scarcely believe they were in the engine, or for that matter, that there hardly was an engine in the car.

You might be tempted to guess that there were more than six of those wonderful cylinders in a Hot Spot Chalmers were it not that you seldom have to bother much to keep them "tuned up."

They are alert, "fast," give you mile-a-minute speed (if you want it), lift you over most any hill with a smile, behave when your engine idles, and are silent. But do you know why?

Hot Spot and Ram's-horn!

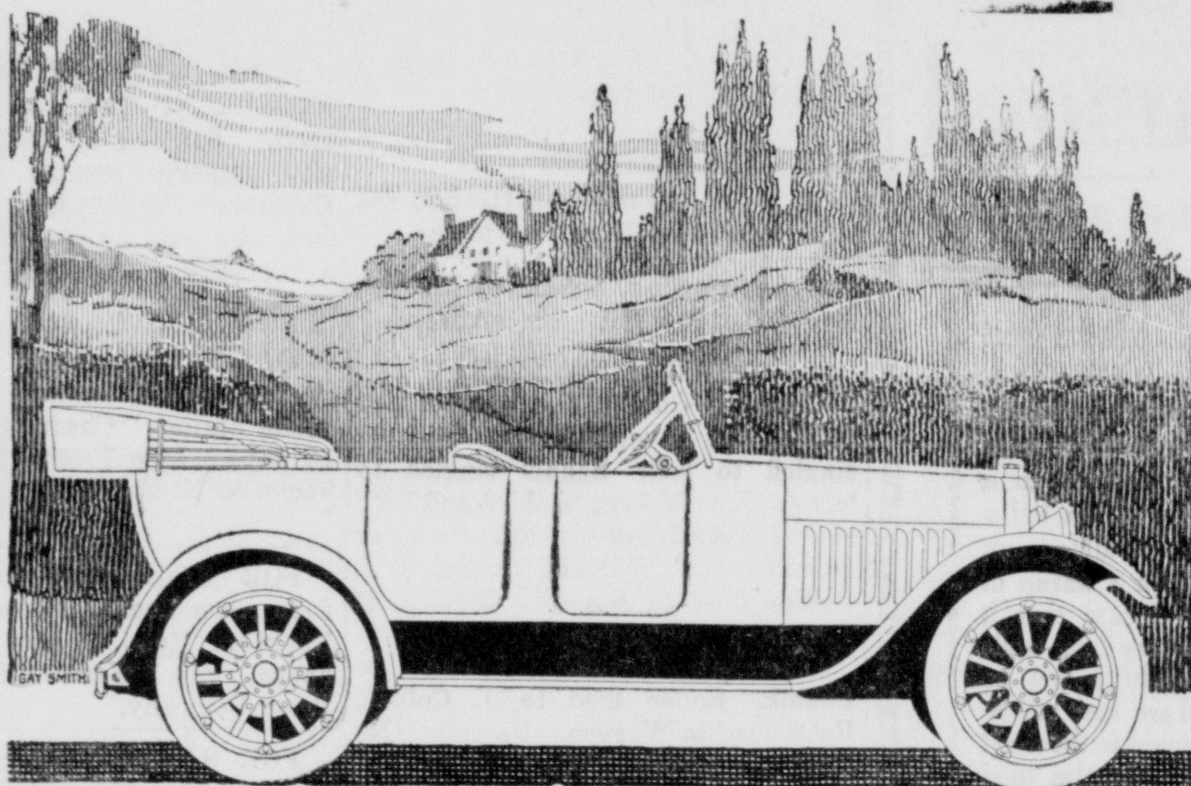

Little and simple—but they make an awful difference.

Don't take a ride in a Hot Spot Chalmers unless you want to get rid of your old car. For if you do the "old boat" will never feel right again.

A Hot Spot Chalmers costs $1685 f.o.b. Detroit. It's worth quite a bit more.

CHICAGO PACKERS WILL GIVE DEFENSE IN DEBATE

To Answer Charge of Interference With American Export Trade—Challenge By Colver.

By United Press

Chicago, October 2—Chicago packers today accepted the challenge made by William B. Colver, federal trade commissioner, to debate charges that the commission plotted with European countries to interfere with America's export trade. Edward Morris, packer, announced that he would be willing to have a representative debate with Colver. This proposition was declined by Colver who said he would not debate with a paid orator, but only with one of the principals. Packers accepted the proposition to send one of their principals. They refused to say who the principal would be until final plans are made for the debate next Saturday.

INDIGESTION Caused by Acid-Stomach

Millions of people—in fact about 9 out of 10—suffer more or less from indigestion, acute or chronic. Nearly every case is caused by Acid-Stomach.

There are other stomach disorders which also are sure signs of Acid-Stomach—belching, heartburn, bloating after eating, food repeating, sour, gassy stomach. There are many ailments which, while they do not cause much distress in the stomach itself, are nevertheless, traceable to an acid stomach. Among these are nervousness, biliousness, cramps of the liver, rheumatism, impoverished blood, weakness, insomnia, melancholia and a long train of physical and mental miseries that keep the victims in miserable health year after year.

The right thing to do is to attack these ailments at their source—get rid of the acid-stomach. A wonderful modern remedy called EATONIC now makes it easy to do this.

One of hundreds of thousands of grateful users of EATONIC writes: "I have been troubled with indigestion for about nine years and have spent quite a sum for medicine, but without relief. After using EATONIC for a few days the gas and pains in my bowels disappeared. EATONIC is just the remedy I needed."

We have thousands of letters telling of these marvelous benefits. Try EATONIC and you, too, will be just as enthusiastic in its praise. Your druggist has EATONIC. Get a big 50c box from him today. He will refund your money if you are not satisfied.

A Jewel of a Mystery Story

Diamond Cut Diamond

By JANE BUNKER

Seven blood-red diamonds are stolen. A clairvoyant finds them and hands them over for safe-keeping to a woman who has led a very uneventful life. From that instant a mixup of people occurs that it takes a very long while to straighten out, so tangled are their affairs. A crowd in the street running after the thief could not be more perplexed, amazed at being suspected guilty, than are the people of the story. For the interest is held to the last moment by a secret well kept; a love story cemented by many tight situations between a charming girl and a newspaper man who rises to the occasion; plot and counterplot—Diamond Cut Diamond—in other words, a mystery story of the highest order.

New Victor Records for October Are Here

Alma Gluck sings the Swedish Cradle Song with a swinging rhythm as a peasant wife alone might sing at the spinning wheel. Philadelphia Orchestra plays Carmen, the March of the Tordora with a dash and brilliancy of a stirring experience. Joseph Smith's Orchestra gives us "Coo Coo" with the trombone's wail and cymbals' clash is a vigorous and exhilarating Fox Trot; also "Who Did It" a One-Step. Just the dance for a jolly company.

General Pershing's March by the Victor Band. A splendid quick step with fine bass effects and a superb swinging movement. Two Hawaiian numbers by Vivian Holt and Lillian Rosedale. Sweet Hawaiian Moonlight and Hawaiian Lullaby.

After hearing these two Hawaiian numbers it is easy to believe that no moon shines like the moon of Hawaii.

Excitement! Complication after complication!
Suspense! A mysterious crime!
A secret kept to the very end!

A charming girl accused—innocent and distracted; a gaunt newspaper man who knows what to do, and does it; clairvoyant; a detective; a girl on rusted with seven blood-red diamonds; a Pittsburgh millionaire; complications of an international sort—yes, it's a real mystery story that can only be unraveled by reading it. No dipping into it or looking back at the end will enable the reader to solve the mystery. And Claire has a love story that's good enough to make a separate book, so thoroughly has the author mastered the art of story telling.

The Greatest Serial of the Season

A MYSTERY THAT DEFIES SOLUTION

HERE is something out of the ordinary in a serial story, a humorous detective tale. It is the kind of a story the readers will appreciate and of which they will never willingly miss a line. Read the following description of the story, and then read the story:

The story is told by a woman novelist about to sail for home from her vacation abroad. She finds herself chaperoning a beautiful young French girl, Claire de Ravenol, to Paris. She flatly refuses to chaperon the girl on the voyage over, but Claire comes under the care of Mrs. Delario, a clairvoyant.

In a conversation with "Monsoo" de Ravenol, Claire's father, the writer casually mentions the fact that she has a relative in the Customs Service who gets her luggage through without trouble or delay.

Claire, at the urgent plea of her father, secretes a small box in a slipper belonging to Mrs. Delario, believing the box to contain important papers that will send her father to prison if found. Instead, the box contains seven blood-red diamonds worth something like a million dollars, that have been stolen from a Pittsburg millionaire. Mrs. Delario thinks the jewels are a gift and really belong to her, and as de Ravenol, the thief, is keen on the scent, she turns them over to the woman novelist for safe keeping. Then de Ravenol turns his attention to the latter, and he, in turn is hunted by a celebrated detective, the "Great Unknown." Billy Rivers, a bright newspaper man, helps his old friend, and, of course, meets Claire. Their romance furnishes the love theme of the story.

It is a genuinely humorous detective story, containing all the elements of mystery, danger, cunning and startling adventures that make one want to stay right "on the job" to see how it will turn out and who the diamonds really belonged to.

Any Corn Peels Off With "Gets-It."

right off just like a banana peel. You can try to dig or drag out your corns with a knife, or slice them with a "bloody" razor, or use bandages and tape and wrap up your toe into a package, but that's the "treat-enough" painful, foolish way. Use 2 or 3 drops of "Gets-It"—that's the peaceful, sure, common-sense way that never fails. You reach the corn easily with the little glass rod in the cork of every "Gets-It" bottle. It does not hurt the true flesh. Try it, trot and smile! It's a blessing; never fails. "Gets-It" the only sure, guaranteed, money-back corn-remover, costs but a trifle at any drug store. M'd by E. Simple Home Remedy Advised For Rose And Hay Fever

Anyone Can Make a Pint For Trifling Sum and Used In Time May Prevent Annual Attack

"No matter how severe your yearly attack be, No matter how distressing or humiliating—Its intensity can be reduced to a harmless, mildness," says a Kentucky druggist who believes from what he has seen that this simple home made remedy is a most important discovery.

He has seen the most severe and apparently unconquerable cases reduced to what might be called a mild cold in twenty-four hours.

In many cases where the patient started treatment a week or ten days before the expected attack the unwelcome yearly visitor failed to appear with anything like its usual intensity. People who want to try this new treatment can make a pint in a few minutes.

Pour one ounce of Mentholized Arcline into a pint bottle then fill the bottle with water that has been boiled. Gargle daily as directed and snuff or spray the nostrils twice daily.

That's all there is to the treatment which so many sufferers have found to be a true friend.

Mentholized Arcline in one ounce vials is dispensed by all the better pharmacies.

The IMPOSTOR

By FRANK L. PACKARD

There was no doubt about the range now, nor the tenor of Ram Gulab Singh's answer. It was as Gunga had said—the principle that dead men tell no tales. Ram Gulab Singh's tactics, from Ram Gulab Singh's standpoint, were faultless—that a ship might disappear off the face of the earth and be never heard of again was one thing, but that she or anyone on board her should return to report that she had been attacked in these waters, suspiciously those of Ram Gulab Singh, was quite another!

And then to Wallen came a space of time that he could not estimate, each moment recording some wild, unreal, bewildering, kaleidoscopic change in the scene around him. Again that terrific crash from a striking shell, and then a scream, unearthly, not human, from the very bowels of the ship—a tremor of the vessel from stem to stern, a groaning, screeching, wrenching of mangled machinery, a tottering thud as though the engines had collapsed upon their bedplates, a cloud of steam volleying skyward from the engine room hatch, and there was no more vibration—and the Monleigh lay a helpless thing, with only a sullen movement now from the momentum of a moment gone.

He drew back against the captain's room.

They were rushing down from the bridge, Mott and Larsen, to hurl themselves down the forward ladders from the boat deck to the flush foredeck below, shouting a confusion of orders to the crew as they ran.

Laynton, still on the bridge, was alternately bawling into the engine room tube and jamming the engine telegraph hysterically backward and forward. A weird, uncanny chorus of exultant shrieks, as of devils in unholy revel, came from across the water, and the sound was close now.

Wallen swept his hands across his eyes. He could make out the other vessel plainly now, gliding like a shadow down upon them—like a shadow, save when the gun's flame burst through the blackness, angry red.

And now aft behind him showed another flame. A curious sight! The steam pouring in immense volumes from the engine room hatch was streaked, as it swirled upward, with darts of yellow and bright red. There was fire below!

A Chinaman, one of the coal passers, naked to the waist, blackened, burned, yelling in torment, demented, appeared suddenly upon the deck, ran by him and leaped headlong from the rail overboard.

The bridge, useless now for navigation, was deserted. Laynton rushed down the ladder and into his room; the quartermaster, who had been at the wheel, came tumbling after the captain, and, like the mates, swung the forward ladder to the foredeck.

The Monleigh rolled with a sudden, heavy lurch. Wallen moved instantly back along the deck. Was she sinking? He halted at the lounging room door for a final glance.

The steam, roaring from the engine room hatch, was streaked now with deeper yellow, deeper red. And now there came the crackle of small arms from the crew forward—the answer a demoniacal mob-scream from close aboard, and, it seemed, a thousand tiny flashes as the fire was returned.

They were close alongside now—he heard the swish of the other's screw going astern to stop the way. They were preparing to board! Why! Why not stand off and sink the Monleigh?—the Monleigh was probably sinking now. Yes, he knew why. They were afraid that what Mott had suggested might be true—that he in the darkness might escape in a boat.

He laughed suddenly. What it Gunga had said: "A fight, sahib, that I would to Allah I might see again before I die!" Well, Gunga had not prayed to Allah in vain. Gunga would have his fight. They were going to board. God, how they lined the decks and rails out there—they were in their hundreds!

It was light now, like the play of lightning with the volleying of the small-arms. Aye, Gunga would have his fight! He laughed again wildly—quite another!

It seemed to freeze his soul with horror, unnerving him, unmanning him for an instant. What of her! And then Wallen's face drew into set, rigid lines, and there came into his eyes a look that was not good to see—and he turned and dashed below.

"Open, Gunga, quick!" he shouted. And as the door swung back: "Miss MacKay—both of you—this way!"

They ran out to meet him, and he caught her suddenly, steadying her as there came a violent shock—and with the shock a hideous, louder outburst of yelling.

It was Ram Gulab Singh alongside! Half carrying her, half guiding her, Wallen, with Gunga behind, gained the top of the companionway, ran out onto the deck through the starboard door of the lounging room and, protected on this side by the deckhouses, rushed forward toward the bridge.

It was a last stand; that was all—ultimately the same as though they had remained below, except that here they could die fighting and not as rats in a trap.

He and Gunga could hold the bridge ladders until the Monleigh went down, or until at least every other part of the ship was in the hands of Ram Gulab Singh; and the charthouse would serve as a protection for her until—until—his brain went sick again with fear at thought of her—and it did not seem to be his voice that was shouting so reassuringly over the horrible babel around him.

"Up you go, Miss MacKay! That's it! Splendid! Now into the chart-room!" He pushed her almost forcibly inside—and swung toward Gunga. "Gunga, take the starboard ladder—I'll take the port."

Around him was an inferno; screams, shrieks, yells and cries, the shrill hiss of escaping steam, the sharp crackle of a flame leaping upward through the engineroom hatch, the crash and rattle of small-arm fire filled the air.

Below on the forward deck it was as though hell itself were loosed. The great looming shape of a vessel lay against the Monleigh's bow, from which, to join scores already there, white-clothed figures, like a horde of ghouls, poured onto the Monleigh's flush deck; and, as a fire-flame shot heavenward, illuminating the scene to daylight brightness, the naked steel of the kris flickered in its downward sweep, and dark, grinning features showed, and out of the features in a horribly incredible way the eyes glittered. And here and there upon the deck forms lay sprawled and prone as they had fallen.

Wallen ripped open a box of cartridges with his thumb nail, and let them tumble loose into his pocket, as he stared over the weather-cloth. What was left of the Monleigh's crew was already driven back on the ladders leading to the boat deck. Ram Gulab Singh was making short work of it—as he must!

With the Monleigh afire, even if the fire were still amships, it was a precarious thing for that other vessel to lay there alongside! That was Laynton and two of the crew on the starboard ladder fighting like demons; and directly below him, on the lower port ladder, were Mott and Larsen and two others—no, there were only Larsen and two of the crew—Mott had pitched downward into the sweep or a kris, seeming most curiously to meet the glint of it in mid air.

Six left! What was the matter below there now? What was that infuriated, triumphant yell of the Malays, louder than any than had gone before? They were swarming up both ladders! Laynton and Larsen from each side had given way—they were hidden under the bridge now, and he could not see, and—

Gunga's voice rang out: "Sahib, they come!"

In a flash Wallen swung about and dropped down full length on the bridge at the head of the port ladder, shouting to Gunga to do the same. He could understand now the sudden retreat from the low ladders.

The Malays had got aft somehow and were now sweeping along the deck, screaming as they came, to take the Monleigh's men in the rear.

And now the fight raged at the foot of his own ladder. Larsen and one man gained it—and Larsen toppled in a heap. The seaman, battling like a madman, made the first step of the ladder, the second, another—and then a form, leaping from the ruck below, pulled the man backward and crashed down himself beside his victim, as Wallen's revolver streamed fire down the ladderway.

The last of the Monleigh's men was gone!

And then they came howling, screaming, mad with the blood-lust that was upon them, sweeping upward one after another—and one after the other went down before Wallen's fire, and the ladder steps grew cluttered, and Wallen laughed aloud. He could hold that ladder against a thousand of them—against all hell! A madness, a frenzy, was upon him. He laughed again. He could hear Gunga singing in a strange, croonlike way as he fought.

Another rush! He fired, fired once more—and then the hammer only clicked as he pulled the trigger. The magazine was empty!

He snatched at his pocket for cartridges, as the great form of a man, tall and gaunt, with distorted face, swept through the screaming mass below and sprang up the ladder.

There was no time to load—the man was almost at the top, with a dozen followers behind him. Wallen leaped to his feet and with clubbed revolver lunged forward.

"Ram Gulab Singh!" He Cried.

And then suddenly the great white beam of a searchlight from seaward played for an instant over the bridge—and in the white light Wallen looked into the eyes of Ram Gulab Singh—and knew it was Ram Gulab Singh, because the hand that clutched at the ladder's side rope was fingerless, save for the forefinger.

"Ram Gulab Singh!" he cried, and struck with all his might—and missed.

The whirr of the other's kris sang in his ear as he flung himself sideways to avoid the blow.

"You have your father's face, you rat!" the man shrieked, and lifted the blade to swing again.

The white light was gone—searching along the length of the ship. Again Wallen struck in the light of the flames now that were bursting, angry, venomous, with a roar and hiss, from the engineroom hatch, and this time the other reeled back as the blow went home.

But the next instant the man behind Ram Gulab Singh on the ladder reached forward between his leader's legs and jerked Wallen's feet from beneath him. There was a scream of triumph from Ram Gulab Singh; and as Wallen, losing his balance, pitched forward, he caught the flash of the whirling kris coming down upon him.

The blade, within an inch of his head, seemed to fly off into the air as though torn from the other's hands; a revolver roared behind him, the hot breath of it on his face, and Ram Gulab Singh flung up his hands; her voice was calling his name again and again—and then he had smashed his fists full into Ram Gulab Singh.

Mechanically his arms locked around the other; and hurtling downward over the sprawled bodies on the ladder-steps, bowling those behind over like ninepins, Wallen spun, twisting and turning in the air, a dead man clutched in his embrace, and crashed upon the deck, and his arms relaxed, and he lay still.

When he opened his eyes he was in Gunga's arms, and Helen MacKay was binding something about his head; and there was a strange stillness about him—strange because the roar of the flames was stillness where it seemed there should be shouts and cries and demoniacal screams and the clash of arms and the shrieks of dying men.

He staggered up to his feet.

Sailors in naval uniform were running about the decks, and a young officer was peering into his face. Wallen tried to place the other, and failed at first, because his head was swimming so dizzily; and then he remembered that it was Lieutenant Damon, of the gunboat York, who had crossed with him once in the Tokamaru.

"A narrow squeak, old chap!" Damon was saying, with a grip on Wallen's hand. "The old York's chasing those devils out there now—hear the guns! We got the whole story from Miss MacKay two days ago. The commander sent me off with a couple of boats' crews in the hope that we'd find some of you alive; and he sent me because I'd know you, Wallen, my boy—if you were really Wallen."

"I don't understand," said Wallen weakly.

"No—I dare say not!" Damon laughed cheerily. "And there isn't much time now to explain; we've got to take to the boat. But, in a word, Miss MacKay here wirelessly your servant's story to Singapore and asked for help for herself, giving a 'nautical position' that she said she had succeeded in getting from the second officer. You had a day's start of us, but you must have been averaging over twelve knots, or we'd have come up sooner."

"They didn't know what to make of that story of Drink-House Sam's murder as your servant told it, but they rounded up the Chinese and Malays that he accused; and two of them confessed, implicating the others. That clears you, old man. Here—steady! Don't wobble like that! I'll get a couple of my men to carry you to the boat." He turned away, hurrying along the deck.

Wallen's hand, raised to sweep across his eyes, touched the hand that, not so deftly now, a little tremblingly now, was still making a pretense at knotting the bandage.

"You—you sent—the story—my story," he said eagerly. "Then—you believed me all the time!"

She shook her head. "I—I wanted to believe—oh, I wanted to," she said wistfully. "Only—I—"

And then her head bent lower, very close to his, and her cheek brushed his—and it was wet with tears.

"Helen!" he whispered.

"Come on!" called Damon, returning. "We'll have to tumble into the boat. The commander said I was to take you ashore and wait for the York to get back; but there's a fellow out there—a Scotsman—who's come out from shore in a big prop that I passed as we came aboard, and that'll be better than a three-mile pull."

"He can't come alongside, of course—too risky a maneuver with the head-way the fire's made aft—but he's waiting for us. In the word I had with him when I told him to stand by, he seemed to know you, Wallen."

And then, as though to corroborate Damon's words, across the water came a hail in a strong, big voice.

"Aboard there! Wallen! 'Tis MacKnight o' Arru, Wallen! Mon, is it well wi' ye?"

And Wallen lifted his head at the cry. He was faint and dizzy, and very weak; but the flames were lighting up those brown, tear-dimmed eyes, and the eyes were smiling into his.

"Yes!" he cried, and his voice rang glad and buoyant out into the darkness, out to MacKnight of Arru. "All's well, MacKnight! All's well!"

WOMAN'S PAGE

Training Little Children

By Ellen Eddy Shaw.

Our All the Year Round Garden Family.

The best behaved fall garden child I know is Daffodil, and next to her, her little brother Jonquil. Sometimes great big fat Hyacinth behaves, but small, brown-coated, smooth-looking, long-nosed Daffodil is quite the nicest. So buy a few daffodil and jonquil bulbs and get acquainted with these two good children.

Notice particularly how similar little Jonquil's coat and nose are to his sister's.

I would let our new friends stay on the table for several days before I planted them, so that we might get to know them by sight and by name, as we learn to know real flesh-and-blood children. But I would be very careful to place these little comrades so that the rounded part or base was down and the pointed face sticking up, and I would never squeeze their noses!

By and by the day will come when Jonquil and Daffodil must be planted. There are several ways of doing this. Suppose we use a glass jar first. It may be a little fern bowl, like the one in which partridge berries are sometimes planted. We fill the bowl almost full of fine white sand and if we have no sand we take some baskets or our little carts and go to a house that is being built and ask the builder if he will give us just a little sand for our garden. Into this bowl full of sand we plant our daffodil or our jonquil bulbs. They must nestle down so that only a little bit of their noses stick out. Two bulbs must never touch each other. They would not be comfortable that way. Two little girls would not like to sit so close to each other at the breakfast table that neither one could move. We must always make our plant children as comfortable as we are ourselves.

Next, give the bulbs a big enough drink to soak the sand thoroughly, but not enough to have water standing on the surface. Now put the bowl away in the dark. The place does not have to be cool, but every little while the sand should be moistened.

In about ten days or two weeks, lo and behold, you will notice long white roots straggling all around and through the sand close to the glass where you can see them, and the noses have put forth some white leaf-like shoots. It is now time to bring our little garden to the light. Then in just a few days a miracle takes place. The roots have shot back into the sand; they do not like the light, and want always to remain cool and covered. The noses have turned green. And within about three weeks Daffodil and Jonquil blossom.

Sometimes instead of using the sand, place some small stones in a low, pretty bowl and arrange the bulbs on top of them. This bowl should be put away in the dark for about ten days or two weeks and then brought out into the light. There should always be enough water to touch the base of the bulbs but never to come around them. This, you see, is just the way we start Chinese lily bulbs, but Daffodil behaves better than the Chinese lilies because her blossoms rarely blast.

If you like, Daffodil and Jonquil may also be planted in a pot or soil. Even so, leave their noses sticking out and you must put them in a dark cold place for five or six weeks. It is better, I think, to use the sand or the stones with Daffodil and Jonquil because then you don't have to wait so long for them.

After you have planted your first two or three daffodils and find out just how long it takes in your home for them to blossom, you could start some for Father's birthday, timing them just right. Of course, it is understood that Father will be kind enough to have a birthday this fall. If he will not, then Mother or Grandmother or Baby surely will. I cannot imagine a family without at least one birthday in the fall or early winter.

To the parent: Just what does a child get out of this little garden? One lesson is a lesson of observation, and another is one of care; careful handling, careful planting and careful watering. The greatest lesson is the lesson of life. How out of something apparently lifeless there springs into being something living, beautiful and sweet. It is a great revelation to anyone, young or old, to handle life and to be able to produce something living, to care for it, and to make it comfortable and happy. And then, you can have such fun planting bulbs! Make a ceremony over it. Fuss about it a little. Use your imagination. Make a picture of the ugly little brown bulb and later, another of the child which comes from it.

Of course, there are other bulbs one may plant, but I am choosing two perfectly satisfactory, absolutely responsible ones. I believe that in work with very little children one should rarely choose what may be a failure. So, in our all-the-year-round garden we pick out successes. Do not forget the names of our fall children, Daffodil and her little brother, Jonquil.

Help to reach all the parents of the country by cutting this out and passing it on to a friend.

How To Make Over Old Clothes

(From the Thrift Magazine)

The old saying "a stitch in time saves nine," is just as true with us as with our grandmothers. Any kind of a garment, whether for outside or inside wear, for big or little people, will wear much longer if the thin places and small holes are darned or strengthened as soon as discovered. Nothing gives one more self-respect than to be neat and clean. Even if the garments are not of the latest cut or the most expensive fabrics their neatness alone will command respect.

Here are some suggestions for making over garments:

A ladies' coat and skirt suit can be made into a very serviceable one-piece dress. A separate skirt combined with a remnant makes a pretty one-piece dress.

Long coats can be made over for one's self, or a top coat for young girl or boy.

A short coat can be remodeled for a dress for a girl, using remnant for combination.

Waists can be tinted and recut for a guimpe for girl, or a camisole, or a baby's cap, or a covering for a woman's summer hat.

From worn night gowns, infant dresses, children's petticoats, or corset covers can be made.

If the gowns are heavier, the worn yokes may be cut off. Sew up the end, run a tape through the hem, and you have a slip cover for fine dress or coat, when hung in the closet.

From men's worn shirts, children's dresses, combined with remnants, can be made blouse waists for a boy, bibs for the baby, or apron for the woman.

Old neckties make beautiful patch work comfort tops or couch covers. Old sweaters may be washed, dyed, unraveled, reknit for women's or children's sweaters, scarfs, caps or wristlets.

Keep all scraps of silk or velvet, for patch work quilts, couch covers, shopping or work bags.

Stocking tops or old underwear may be used for bloomers, or petticoats for babies or little girls, bed socks, dust rags or wash rags or for miscellaneous mending.

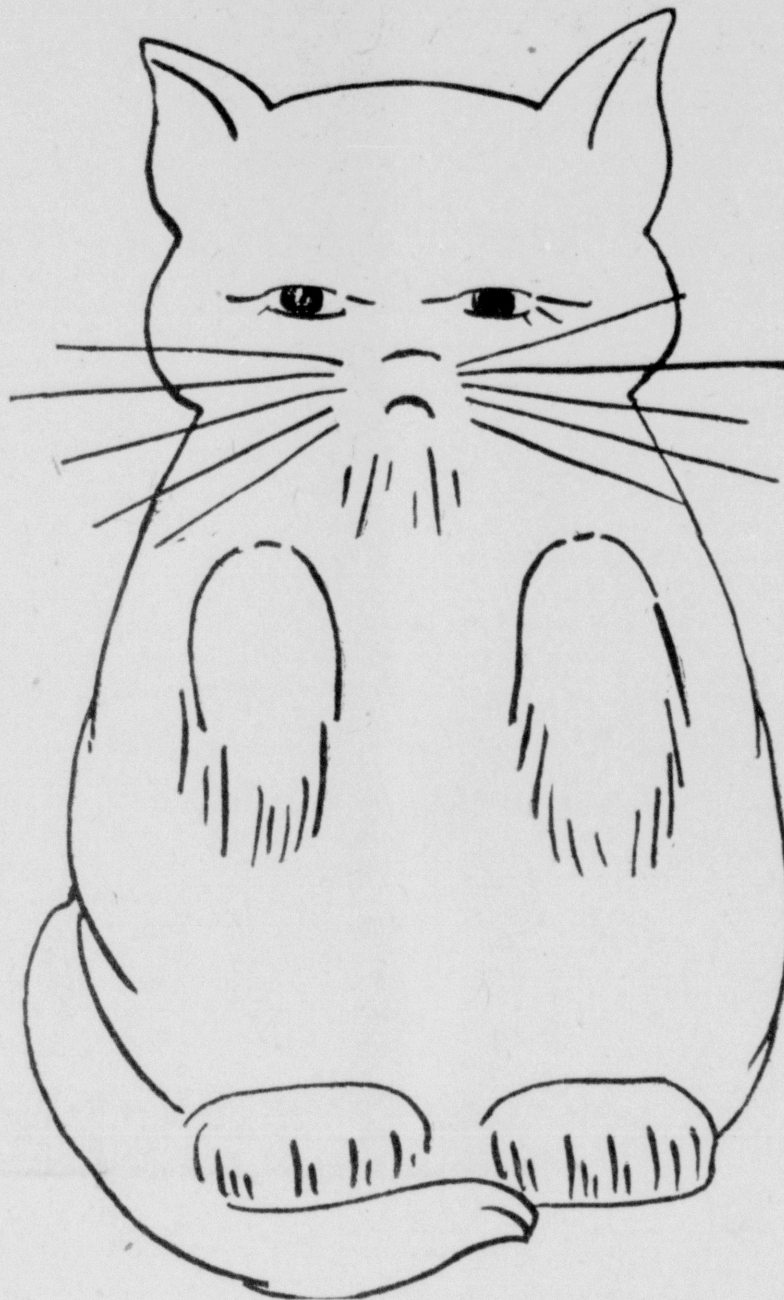

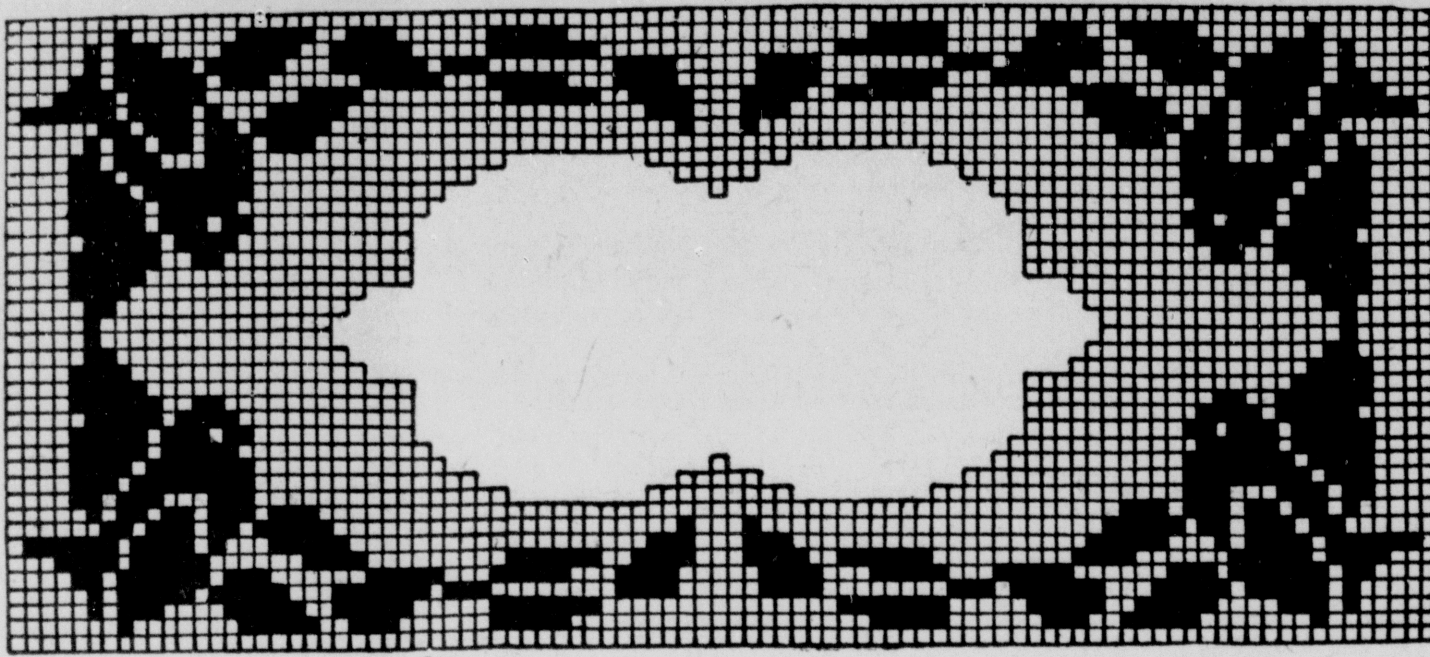

If possible, mend knit underwear with knit underwear patches, basting the patch over the hole. Stitch with machine, hemming down the raw edge by hand.

Spanish Cream

1½ tablespoon gelatine, 2 cups milk, 1 cup coffee, ½ cup sugar, 3 eggs, few grains salt, 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Combine the milk, coffee and gelatine in a double-boiler top and cook the mixture over hot water until the gelatine is completely melted, about twenty minutes. Beat the egg yolks, stir in the sugar and salt and add to the hot milk and coffee. Stir constantly until the mixture thickens and coats the spoon. Then remove at once from the heat, add the vanilla and pour the mixture into the egg whites, whipped until stiff. Transfer to a large mould, which has been rinsed with cold water, or to individual moulds, if desired, and let stand until firm. This will take at least six hours in a cool place. Serve plain, with cream or whipped cream, or with a marshmallow, or caramel nut sauce.

ASK ME!

Answers by Carolina Jewett

Dear Miss Jewett: What is the best thing to use for fumigating a house? Will you please tell me how to go about the job of fumigating?

Fumigation with sulphur is the only practicable method for disinfecting the house. For this purpose the room to be fumigated must be vacated. Heavy clothing, blankets, bedding and other articles which cannot be treated with zinc solution should be opened and exposed during the fumigation. Close the rooms tightly as possible, place the sulphur in iron pans supported upon bricks, set it on fire with the aid of a spoonful of alcohol, allow the room to remain closed for twenty-four hours. For a room about ten feet square, at least two pounds of sulphur should be used; for larger rooms, proportionately increased quantities.

Dear Miss Jewett: How long has ether been known to science? Can you tell me who discovered it?

Ether was known to the earliest chemists. Nitric ether was first discovered by Kunkel, in 1681; and muriatic ether, from the chloride of tin, by Courtauvau in 1759. Anesthetic ether was discovered by Count Lavarre, same year; and hydriodic ether was first prepared by Gay-Lussac. The phosphoric was obtained by M. Boullay. Ether is said to have been first applied to the purpose of causing insensibility to pain by Dr. Horace Wells of Connecticut, in 1846. The discovery that by inhaling ether, the patient is rendered unconscious of pain, is due to Dr. Charles T. Jackson, of Boston; but to Dr. Morton of the same place, probably belongs the credit of first demonstration by actual experiment, the use of ether in dentistry and surgery. The practice was first copied in Europe by Dr. Robertson, of Edinburgh, and Dr. Booth of London, in 1846.

Dear Miss Jewett: What is the salary of the President of the United States? Also the vice-president and the cabinet officers?

The president of the United States received a salary of $50,000 a year; the vice-president, $12,000 a year, cabinet officers $12,000 a year.

Dear Miss Jewett: Would it be all right for me to visit my fiancé's parents? They live in the next town, and have planned all sorts of wonderful things that they will do during my visit.

If you are engaged to be married, I see no reason why you should not go.

Dear Miss Jewett: Are long pointed finger-nails in good taste? Is it wrong for a girl to go auto riding without a chaperon? Is it all right for a girl to let a boy wear her ring? I am nearly 17.

No, the long pointed nails are not in good taste. The nails should be oval in shape and should barely reach the tips of the fingers. No, indeed, it would not be proper to go unchaperoned. It is not wrong, but rather silly to let a boy wear your ring.

Dear Miss Jewett: Where is Oxford College located?

Oxford College is situated at Oxford, fifty-two miles from London, England, and it comprises twenty colleges and six halls, the latter for the residence of students.

Miss Jewett will answer questions for readers of The Republican on any subject. Address all communications to Miss Jewett, care this paper, and the answers will appear in this column.

Preparing Evaporated Milk

By Jane Tyler

Evaporated milk is simply cow's milk with the water extracted by vacuum process and then sterilized. As the milk arrives from the dairy it is put into a sanitary container, tested and weighed. If it tests up to standard it is pumped into a glass-lined refrigerator tank, and measured, quantities are then pumped into preheating kettles, which are spotlessly clean.

At a certain temperature the milk is pumped into a vacuum pan, where a part of the water is evaporated. From a glass-lined refrigerator storage tank it goes through a coil cooler into a pressure tank and then into filling machines. After the cans are sealed they are placed on trays in the sterilizing steam oven. The color is influenced by sterilization. Too severe heat gives it a heavy brown color and indicates carelessness.

Evaporated milk is unsweetened, while condensed milk contains about thirty per cent. sugar. One gallon of the best evaporated milk corresponds with 2½ gallons of fluid milk. All brands of evaporated milk must contain 7.8 per cent. butter fat. Ordinarily high grades or fresh milk only contain 3 per cent. butter fat. Therefore the housewife needs to use less evaporated milk than the quantity required for fresh milk.

To whip evaporated milk, beat it slightly first, then chill and whip same as you would whipping cream. Evaporated milk is always fresh in the can and should be found on every emergency shelf.

EVAPORATED MILK ICE CREAM
1½ quarts evaporated milk, 1½ quarts sweet milk, 3 eggs (whites) 1½ lbs. sugar, 2 teaspoonfuls vanilla.

Heat the sweet milk and dissolve the sugar in it. After the mixture is removed from the heat add evaporated milk. When cool, add the vanilla. Put into a freezer, turn, and when the mixture becomes difficult to turn, add whites of eggs and finish freezing.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Over Sleeves

Nearly all business girls wear over sleeves while at work; but if the sleeves are made of the usual black or dark material, they give a severe look to any dress.

It is a good plan to make the sleeves from men's handkerchiefs; the cheap ones sold for ten cents, answer the purpose. Perhaps the most serviceable kind is that with white center and a colored border. A center of solid tint is pretty, and may show the dirt less; but the tint is likely to soon fade, and the goods on which it is used is likely to be more expensive than the white handkerchiefs.

Fold the handkerchief diagonally twice, to form a right-angled triangle, four folds to the thickness, with the edges of the handkerchief as the hypotenuse. Then cut one end of the corners or acute angle, somewhat on a slant. The wrist of the sleeves should be about five inches before it is bound. All seams must be French ones so that there shall be no roughness.

Gather the wrist slightly, and bind it with a bias strip from one of the pieces that were cut off. It should be from three and three fourths to four and a quarter inches across when finished, or just large enough to slip the hand through easily. A narrow edging of lace may be added; it gives the sleeve a more finished appearance, folding twice of course, gives a pair of sleeves from one handkerchief.

When the sleeves are in use the seam comes on the inside of the arm and the point is pinned on the outside, just above the elbow. That will hold the sleeve comfortably in place, and the strain being on the bias of the cloth it gives with every motion of the arm, and fits more closely than a sleeve made on the straight would.

Such a sleeve can also be worn by any housekeeper when she is at her work. They can be made and laundered so easily that they commend themselves to the practical girl.

Coffee Cabinet Pudding

2 cups milk, 1 cup strong coffee, 3 eggs, 1-3 teaspoon salt, 1½ tablespoon melted butter, 1-3 cup sugar, 1 teaspoon powdered cinnamon, ¾ teaspoon powdered nutmeg, ½ teaspoon powdered clove, 1 cup chopped dates, sponge cake.

Beat the eggs, add the sugar and spices and pour in the milk and coffee, which should be heated together, add the butter. Thoroughly oil a mould and sprinkle it with the dates, which should be chopped quite fine, and put in a layer of the sponge cake. Strew over this a few more of the dates, continuing in this way until all have been used and the mould is three-fourths full. Pour the egg mixture over this, cover and steam for an hour. Serve with coffee caramel sauce. Stale sponge cake, or a mixture of odds and ends of cake, may be used in this dessert.

BAPTISTS HOLD
ANNUAL MEETING

during the year. The Easter Drive set two goals, one for 50 additions to the church and the other an addition of $1,500 to the building fund.
The result was 47 additions at Easter and $1,726.42 added to the building fund.

The church adopted a budget
during the year of $1,800 for current expenses and $900 for missionary purposes. Both of the budgets have been more than met.

A Victory Campaign meeting was held in March addressed by Rev.
F. E. R. Miller of Illinois, and Dr.
M. D. Eubanks of China. At that meeting a banquet was served by the ladies of the church. During the year the pastor's salary was increased from $1,500 to $2,000.

The eightieth anniversary of the church was celebrated June 29 with appropriate services. The church participated in the union Sunday evening meetings at the park and on September 15, C. C. Chen a Chinese student who had been assisted by the church in his college work, visited the church and spoke his appreciation and gave an outline of his future work upon his return to China. The new constitution was adopted in July to take effect October 1.

The report of Edward Massman, the building fund treasurer, showed that the church had in its building fund $4,282.08, practically all of which is invested in interest bearing notes, awaiting the time when it is advisable to do the general remodeling. The church recently purchased a new parsonage on South
Walnut street at a cost of $3,500.

The Sunday School participated in the union teachers' training class last spring with the other Sunday Schools of the city. A daily vacation Bible school was conducted during the summer with John A.
Barnett as principal assisted by a number of volunteer teachers. The primary department is in urgent need of more room and better equipment to carry on its work satisfactorily. The Sunday School treasurer's report showed an income of $2,113.49, of which $138.44 was for missions and $1,726.72 for building fund.

Additional reports were made for the primary department by Mrs.
Fred Niehaus; the junior department, Mrs. Robt. Blair; the Southwest mission, Miss Susie Sage; the Park mission, Grover Marquette;
the Second Baptist church, Miss Anna E. Carter; the parsonage committee, George T. Bartlett; deacons,
J. Robt. Blair; deaconesses, Mrs. W.
O. Shepard; trustees, N. M. Carlson; Ladies Aid Society, Mrs. N. M.
Carlson; Missionary Society, Mrs.
B. W. Cunningham; Loyal Daughters, Mrs. Ella Davis; the brotherhood, George T. Bartlett; B. Y. P. U.
Dorothy Smith; reports of Boy Scouts and the music committee were read by the clerk and pastor.

The report of the nominating committee was made and officers for the coming year were elected as follows:

Trustees: Three years, George
Bartlett, Ed Massman; Two years,

ANOTHER HEARING
SET FOR OCTOBER 9

the plant by the cimmission's engineers. Commission Corr at that time announced that a supplementary hearing would have to be held to determine this contention.

The company's attorneys announced at the previous hearing that they contended that the cost of reproducing the plant at present day prices would be $150,000 and that the valuation for purposes of rate making was $114,000. The city insisted that the commission's estimate of $88,000 was too high.

Before the hearing on the valuation is conducted, the commission will send its staff of engineers here to go over the plant and list every piece of equipment that is "used and useful" in the operation of the system. The engineers will then apply what is known as the unit cost to ascertain the actual value. The commission has adopted certain unit costs for the various equipment based on the prevailing prices for a certain number of years.

The hearing on October 9 will not continue longer than a day and no evidence in the case will be introduced except that which has a bearing on the value of the plant. After the hearing the commission will determine the valuation and upon this will compute the rates which will be in effect here.

IMPROVEMENTS IN BUSINESS SECTION

for quite an extension of his business as soon as the new building is ready for occupancy.

The improvement of the building which is well located for the drug business, will add much to the appearance of the entire block which is an important section of the business district.

Announcement was also formally made today that E. C. Franz, of Louisville, has become the Ford dealer for Seymour and the vicinity and has purchased the lot at the corner of Second and Ewing streets recently taken over by a group of local business men who contemplated
the construction of a hotel there.
Mr. Franz is preparing plans for the erection of a modern, well equipped garage and repair department which will be conducted in connection with the sales department.

Mr. Franz who was assistant manager of the Louisville office, is an experienced automobile salesman and branch manager. The territory which he has for the Ford car embraces about two-third of Jackson county for the pleasure car and additional territory for the tractor which is manufactured by the same company.

Temporarily he will be located at Cooper's garage, Jeffersonville avenue, but will begin work on the garage at his permanent location as soon as possible. Mrs. Franz and daughter will come here for permanet residence within a few days.

The garage will be another valuable addition to the eastern section of the business district. The lot has been vacant for years, despite its excellent location. The construction of an attractive, modern garage there will be an improvement that will add to the entire street.
